Al Hollingsworth – wealthy business leader, international speaker, minister of the Gospel and owner of the Aldelano Packaging Corporation. With over 42 years in business, Al Hollingsworth has grown Aldelano Packaging Corporation into a successful contract packaging corporation with plants that service major and Fortune 500 clients including American Airlines, Proctor & Gamble, Toyota, General Mills, Red Bull and Verizon. Aldelano packaging is known for exceptional service and value. Aldelano packaging has built a reputation of dependability and trust. Aldelano has received numerous awards and accolades, including NMSDC's Corporate Plus distinction.

In addition to business success, Al Hollingsworth along with his wife Hattie Hollingsworth are the founders of the internationally-acclaimed, Christ-centered BOSS The Movement youth success training curriculum and its adult success training component known as the Vertical Leap Seminar. The Biblically-based success training principles of BOSS The Movement and Vertical Leap have been embraced throughout the U.S and around the world in regions such as Japan, Kenya, South Africa, Switzerland, Ghana, Jamaica, Italy, Ukraine, Brazil, Belgium, Philippines, Indonesia, and the Bahamas among many others – and have trained thousands on market place ministry ethics and application.

Al and Hattie Hollingsworth are also founders of the Alhatti Christian Resort, a four-star vacation and retreat facility located in Idyllwild, California, in the mountains above Palm Springs. Situated on the former filming grounds of the Southern California filming site for the Bonanza TV series, the Alhatti Christian Resort is also a premier retreat, conference, wedding, vacation and event center for Christian churches and families around the world.
